VACCINATION AND TRAVEL

One Mission Society Australia recognises the right of choice for Australians regarding vaccinations however does require missionary staff to adhere to local laws and regulations both in Australia and in host countries. Missionaries are advised to seek professional medical advice regarding appropriate vaccination and other preventative medication according to the countries they will visit while fulfilling their role with OMS.

Missionaries will be required to sign a commitment to adhere to future government legislation around vaccination which may arise in their host country (or Australia) and also any airline regulations which may need to be complied with in order to return to Australia. Missionaries will agree not to hold OMS responsible for any medical issues or travel complications which arise in the course of serving with OMS.
